April 1984  NEWSLETTER  Issue No. 1

This is the first issue of the Newsletter, which will appear two or perhaps three times a year, depending on the material forthcoming. Its purpose is to keep members in touch with one another, and to this end one of its prime functions will be to issue an annual list of members' recent publications and work in progress. This first issue contains a current list of members, with a note of their areas of interest, and an initial bibliography of relevant publications, based on replies to the questionnaire circulated.

Members are encouraged to submit any relevant items of news or information for the Newsletter (to any Committee Member, or to the editor: David Cram, Department of Linguistics, Aberdeen University, Aberdeen AB9 2UB). In particular, material is invited for a NOTES & QUERIES section, for example on biographical or bibliographical matters. Comments and suggestions as to the content of the Newsletter would be welcome.

David Cram

A NOTE ON THE FOUNDATION OF THE SOCIETY

After informal contacts and meetings in Oxford, a group of scholars from various disciplines has agreed that it is appropriate to inaugurate in Britain a society to bring together persons with a professional interest in the history of linguistic ideas. Such an enterprise is not entirely novel, since a comparable society—the Société d'Histoire et d'Épistémologie des Sciences du Langage—was founded in France in 1978. There is, however, no similar organisation for the English-speaking world, and the growth of interest in the history of linguistics in recent years suggests that the time is now ripe for the establishment of a sister society.

The time seems particularly appropriate now that our generation of linguists has seen the old debate between historicists and descriptivists give way to a new kind of discussion, so that we have shared in the invigorating experience of absorbing the impact of several fresh intellectual paradigms. We are therefore in a position to be acutely aware of our subject as a discipline governed by historical processes, and we are accordingly well placed, in the light of our own experience, to reflect on its earlier history and to study both the rifts and the continuities it exhibits.

We believe that Oxford is also an appropriate place for the inauguration of such a society, since it has been the home of a number of important developments in linguistic thought; more particularly it saw the beginning of the study of language in England in the modern period, in the debates and discussions of the 1650s which took place in the circle of scholars surrounding Bishop John Wilkins of Wadham, as a preliminary to the publication of his Essay towards a Real Character, and a Philosophical Language and of George Salgarno's Ars Signorum.

A more immediate inspiration for us has been the example of the Wellcome Unit (Oxford) for the History of Medicine, a research centre whose Interests include the achievements of early physicians and surgeons who were also, like Thomas Linacre and William Holder, pioneers in the study of language. The hospitality of the Unit has been generously extended to members of our society interested in the early history of British linguistics, while the Unit has provided a model of a resource centre and focal point for research which might well be adopted by historians of linguistic ideas were resources ever to become available.

As members of an international movement, we do not wish to designate ourselves a 'British' society; on the other hand, our links with Oxford, which we hope to retain, make it appropriate for us to commemorate in our title one of the distinguished linguists of the past whose achievements were associated with this university. It seemed to us an excellent opportunity to honour one of Oxford's most eminent linguists, a figure of international standing, whose work marked a historical milestone in the development of linguistic scholarship; and we have therefore chosen to name our society in honour of Henry Sweet.

The inaugural meeting of the Society was held in Oxford on 11th February 1984, but before that date a number of exploratory meetings had taken place, the first being a totally informal gathering on August 18th 1983. A draft of a constitution was later prepared by an ad hoc executive committee, and adopted, with minor amendments, at the inaugural meeting.

It was agreed that, for reasons of convenience while the Society was being established, the officers and committee members should be resident within Oxford or within easy reach of the city; the following were therefore elected to hold office for an initial period:

President: Professor R.H. Robbins, M.A., D.Lit.
Vice-President: Ian Michael, C.B.E., Ph.D., Hon.D.Litt.
Executive Committee:
Chairman: L.Seiffert, M.A., Dr.Phil.
Vice-Chairman: Vivian Salmon, M.A.
Hon. Secretary: J.L. Flood, M.A., Ph.D.
Hon. Treasurer: D.P. Crew, B.A., Ph.D.
Committee Members:
Professor Anna M.Davies, M.A.
O.R. McLintock, M.A., D.Lit.
Professor Emeritus F.R. Salmon, M.A., Ph.D.
D.Majestyk, B.Sc, M.A., D.Phil.

Those who were associated in any way with the establishment of the Society, and who have generously made loans or donations in support of its initial activities, have been designated 'Founder Members' and so indicated in the membership list which follows in this Newsletter.

It is envisaged that the annual general meetings of the Society will take place within the framework of shorter colloquia or residential conferences, and the venue for these will, in the immediate future, be Oxford. Since in 1984 a major conference on the history of the linguistic sciences will take place in Princeton, it has been decided to hold in Oxford a one-day colloquium only, which will take place on September 17th.

L. Seiffert
V. Salmon
FIRST COLLOQUIUM OF THE H.S.S.

The inaugural colloquium on 17 September will take place at St Peter's College, Oxford, and will be devoted to a variety of topics; papers are expected on Henry Sweet, the relationship between phonetics and medicine in the early 19th century, Lindsey Murray's Grammar, literacy in Italy in the early modern period, some aspect of the history of linguistics in Ireland, and a survey of the teaching of the history of linguistics in British universities. In a short colloquium it has obviously not been possible to offer papers which are strictly relevant to the interests of all our members, but we hope that we can offer a wider range at the longer conference planned to take place in 1985. This colloquium will at least provide all members with an opportunity to meet one another, and we have therefore arranged residential accommodation at St Peter's for those who would like to stay after the colloquium, or for those who wish to arrive early - for example after the LGB meeting. Accommodation is at present available in single rooms (at £6.60 a night) and double rooms (at £9.90). These are current prices, and meals are extra.

Owing to the heavy demand for accommodation in Oxford during the summer, early booking is essential. A provisional reservation has been made for the nights of 16 and 17 September, but the Hon. Secretary has been asked to give a fairly accurate idea of numbers by about 18 May, and would greatly appreciate hearing by then from members who wish to book a room. Please state (a) the date(s) on which accommodation is required, and (b) whether a single or double room is to be reserved.

Vivian Salmon (Hon. Sec.)
5 Rotha Field Road
Oxford OX2 8JZ

MEETINGS AND CONFERENCES

SOCIETAS LINGUISTICA EUROPAEA, 17th Annual Meeting, Manchester and Salford, 10-12 September 1984. Details from Professor Collinge, Department of General Linguistics, University of Manchester, Manchester M13 9PL.

LINGUISTICS ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN, Autumn Meeting, University of Essex, 14-16 September. Meetings Secretary: Dr M.W. Wheeler, School of Modern Languages, University of Liverpool, P.O. Box 147, Liverpool L69 3BX.

EDWARD SAPIR CENTENARY CONFERENCE, National Museum of Man, Ottawa, 1-3 October 1984. Further details from Konrad Koerner, Department of Linguistics, University of Ottawa, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1N 6N5.
HSS NEWSLETTER

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BRITISH SOCIETY FOR EIGHTEENTH CENTURY STUDIES. Holds annual conferences and publishes both an interdisciplinary journal and a bulletin. Details from Dr Richard Waller, Dept. of French, Modern Languages Building, University of Liverpool, PO Box 147, Liverpool L69 3BX.

MÜNSTER SEMIOTIC CIRCLE (Münsterer Arbeitskreis für Semiotik). Established in 1977. The circle has various publication series, including "History of Linguistics and Semiotics" edited by Klaus Dutz and Ludger Kaczmarek. Further details from either editor at: Institut für Allgemeine Sprachwissenschaft, Westfälische Wilhelms Universität, Bispinghof 17, D-4400 Münster, W. Germany.

POETICS AND LINGUISTICS ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN. The Association holds an annual conference, regular regional conferences and issues a twice-yearly newsletter. Further details from Dr R.A. Carter, Secretary PALA, Department of English Studies, University of Nottingham, Nottingham NG7 2RD.

THE OXFORD PROGRAMME IN YIDDISH. Summer course in Yiddish Language and Literature, 6-31 August 1984. Enquiries: Ms Jean Nightingale, The Oxford Programme in Yiddish, Oxford Centre for Postgraduate Hebrew Studies, 45 St Giles, Oxford OX1 3JW.

NEWS

A 'New Blood' post in the field of the History of Linguistics, with particular reference to the European Middle Ages, is to be established in the Department of Linguistics, University of Cambridge. Further details from the Secretary of the Appointments Committee for the Faculty of Modern and Medieval Languages, Sidgwick Avenue, Cambridge CB3 9DA.

NOTES AND QUERIES

Vivian Salmon is preparing the section on the history of linguistics in Britain for the Year's Work in English Studies (1983), and would welcome information on relevant books and articles bearing this date.

For a survey of courses on the History of Linguistics in British universities, to be presented at the first HSS Colloquium, Ms Mary Wood (address below) would welcome any information, including syllabus outlines, reading lists, etc. Of particular interest would be details of relevant postgraduate theses in preparation.
LIST OF MEMBERS AND CURRENT RESEARCH INTERESTS

(An asterisk before a name indicates a Founder Member.)

Dr Anders Ahlqvist,
University College, Galway, Ireland.
The history of mediaeval Irish linguistics.

*Dr Wendy Ayres-Bennett,
Department of French, Faculty of Modern and Medieval Languages, Sidgwick Ave., Cambridge CB3 9DA.
History of French grammars, especially Vaugelas.

Professor Miriam Balmuth,
Hunter College, City University of New York, 695 Park Ave., New York, New York 10021.
The history of reading; related aspects of the history of writing, of orthography and of punctuation.

Dr Charles L. Barber,
7 North Parade, Leeds LS16 5AY. (Formerly at The School of English, University of Leeds.)
Attitudes to language (and especially to the English language) in England in the Early Modern period (c. 1500-1700).

Dr William A. Bennett
Young's College, University of London, Strand, London WC2R 2LS.
Modern and historical French linguistics. Applied linguistics.

Mr Gregory Brooks,
National Foundation for Educational Research, The Mere, Upton Park, Slough SL1 2DQ.
The predominance of oral reading in antiquity and the Middle Ages. The transition from oral to silent reading since the late Middle Ages. The history of reading and of its teaching, experimental study and uses; and of literacy. Theories and models of psycholinguistic processes expressed in diagrammatic form, 1871-1922.

*Dr Edwina Burness,
4 Salem Road, London W4 4BU. (Department of English, University of Connecticut Study in London Programme, Bedford College.)
The history of speech in English literature, notably in drama or dramatic poetry; current research on the female register. The use and development of the Scottish language in literature.

Miss Gillian Cawthra,
Department of English Language, University of Sheffield.
Nineteenth-century philology; Max Mühler; Alexander Bain. Relation of language to thought: the debate at the end of the 19th century. Biblical criticism/higher criticism and its impact on subsequent linguistic research. The relation of language to literature.

Professor Paul Christophersen,
1 Corfe Close, Cambridge CB2 2QA. (Professor Emeritus, New University of Ulster.)
(1) Language learning and language teaching: nature versus nurture. Is the distinction between 'native' and 'non-native' users scientifically valid? (2) Borrowing versus direct inheritance. In view of (a) the indeterminacy of dialect and language boundaries and (b) present ideas about innateness in language, is this distinction justified?

Professor N.E. Collinge,
University of Manchester, Manchester M11 9PL.

*Dr Rosemary Conbridge,
31 Linton House, 11 Holland Park Avenue, London W11 3RL.
Comparative Indo-European (especially Germanic) philology. History of the German language, including the history of grammar writing, more especially orthography, and the history of the teaching of German, especially orthography, in schools. Growing points in intellectual and poetic language (e.g. Hystics, Klopstock, Rilke).

*Dr David F. Cran,
Department of Linguistics, University of Aberdeen, Aberdeen AB9 2UB.
Seventeenth-century universal language schemes, and in particular the works of George Dalgarno. The history of Scottish Gaelic grammars.

*Professor Anna M. Davies,
Somerville College, Oxford OX2 6UD.
History of nineteenth-century linguistics. History of classical linguistics (mainly Greek) and of ancient (Greek) attitudes to language.

*Dr Eirian C. Davies,
Department of English, Bedford College, University of London, Egham Hill, Surrey TW20 6EX.
Grammatical theory. Grammars of English of the 18th to 20th centuries.

Dr Klaus D. Dutz,
Institut für Allgemeine Sprachwissenschaft, Westfälische Wilhelms Universität, Bispingerhof 17, D-4400 Münster, W. Germany.
Sixteenth- and seventeenth-century language theory. Late mediaeval logic of language. History of semiotics. The work of G.W. Leibniz and his contemporaries.

*Professor David Freeman,
Wadham College Oxford OX1 3PN. (from 5/8/84: Department of English, Sir Wilfred Grenfell College, Memorial University of Newfoundland, Corner Brook, NF, Canada A2H 8P9.)
The English language of the seventeenth century, especially the changing aspects throughout the period 1600-1700 of grammar, spelling, punctuation and pronunciation. The importance of co-operation between textual critic and linguistic historian in the establishment of sound texts and the production of accurate comment on them.
*Dr John L. Flood,
University of London Institute of Germanic Studies, 29 Russell Square,
London WC1B 5DP.
History of orthography and punctuation in Germany, with special reference to the guidance on these matters given in printers’ manuals. The interdependence of language and typography, especially in Germany. The history of German spelling reform.

*Professor Thomas Frank,
Università degli Studi di Napoli, Istituto di Filologia Moderna, 80133
Napoli, Via Porta di Nassa 1, Italy.
17th-century linguistics.

*Professor Sidney Greenbaum,
Department of English, University College London, Gower St., London WC1E 6BT.
The history of English grammar.

Mr Stephen A. Guice,
A647 Wells Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48823, USA.
History of linguistics in North America.

Dr Camiel Hamans,
GabriH Metsustraat 24, 1071 EB Amsterdam, Netherlands. (Department of Dutch, University of Leyden)
Universal language. Francis Lodwick. Leibniz. The origin of language. 18th century theories about evolution in relation to language.

*Mr C. Geoffrey Harlow,
Nicholas Hill Farm, Valley Road, Henley-on-Thames, Oxon RG9 1BN.
(Westfield College, University of London)
Old English punctuation. Literacy and language in sixteenth-century England.

Professor Roy Harris,
Worcester College, Oxford.
History of Classical and French philosophy of language.

*Mr Terence F. Hoad,
St Peter’s College, Oxford OX1 2DL.
English philology; etymology.

Mr Anthony P.R. Howatt,
Department of Linguistics, 14 Buccleuch Place, Edinburgh 8.
The history of language teaching, with specific reference to the teaching of English as a second/foreign language. The history of literacy in English.

Dr David Katz,
21 Lydford Road, Willesden Green, London NW2 5QY. (Oxford Centre for Postgraduate Hebrew Studies, 45 St Giles, Oxford OX1 3LG.)
The Hebrew and Aramaic grammarians of Mediaeval Spain, with special reference to their conceptualisations of phonemics and phonology.
The history of Yiddish language studies from the sixteenth to the twentieth centuries, with reference to sociocultural motivation, linguistic framework and comparative study (e.g. Yiddish-Hebrew, Yiddish-German). The development of modern Yiddish linguistics with emphasis on the application of current thought in general and historical linguistics to the study of Yiddish.

*Mr John Kelly,
Department of Language, University of York, Heslington, York YO1 5DD.
The work of Henry Sweet, A.J. Ellis, Baudouin de Courtenay.

Mr J. Alan Kemp,
Department of Linguistics, University of Edinburgh, Adam Ferguson Building, George Square, Edinburgh EH8 9LL.

*Professor E.F. Konrad Koerner,
Department of Linguistics, University of Ottawa, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada KIN 6N5.
Nineteenth- and twentieth-century linguistics. The history of linguistics and the history and philosophy of science.

Dr W.R. Lee,
16 Alexandra Gardens, Hounslow, Middle TW3 4HU. (Formerly at the Institute of Education, University of London)

*Professor Giulio Lepschy,
Department of Italian Studies, The University, Reading RG2 2AA.
The history of linguistics in the Renaissance and in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

*Dr David R. McLintock,
4 Sydney House, Woodstock Rd., London W4 1DP. (Emeritus Reader, Goldsmiths' College, University of London)
History of the German language. Works on German orthography in the 16th and 17th centuries.

Dr Michael K.C. MacMahon,
Department of English Language, University of Glasgow, Glasgow G12 8QQ.
Nineteenth-century phonetics and neurolinguistics.

*Dr Ian Michael,
10A Downfield Road, Bristol BS8 2TJ. (Hon. Associate, formerly Deputy Director, University of London Institute of Education.)
The history of the teaching of English language and literature (as a first language).

Dr Joyce M. Morris,
33 Deena Close, Queens Drive, London W3 OHR. (Formerly Head of Reading Department, N.F.F.E.R.)
History of the application of linguistic ideas to the teaching/learning of reading and related language skills, including the development of 'linguistic-informed' materials. The history of orthographies.
Mr John Mountford,
Department of Classics, University of Southampton.
Linguistic graphology. Applied linguistics.

*Professor Seán F. O'Mahony,
Room CI-06, Arts and Commerce Building, University College, Dublin 4.
Post-renaissance linguistics and language courses. Evolution of methodology in second language teaching. History of educational ideas.

*Professor Noel E. Osselton,
Department of English Language, University of Newcastle upon Tyne, Newcastle upon Tyne NE1 7RU.

*Dr G. Arthur Padley,
Department of French, University College Dublin, Belfield, Dublin 4.
The history of grammatical theory, 1500-1700.

*Professor Rebecca Posner,
St Hugh's College, Oxford OX2 6LY.
Linguistic theories as applied to the Romance languages, from the earliest times to the present day. Linguistic ideas in France, Spain and Italy in the 17th and 18th centuries and their repercussion on the development of the standard languages.

Dr Ian Press,
Queen Mary College, Mile End Road, London E
Slavonic, Celtic and Romance linguistics.

Mr Tony Pugh,
The Open University, Yorkshire Region, Fairfax House, Merrion St., Leeds LS2 8JU.

Dr Vera Regan,
Department of French, University College Dublin, Belfield, Dublin 4.
The history of rhetoric in France 1500-1700.

*Professor David A. Reibel,
Englisches Seminar, Wilhelmstr. 50, D-7400 Tübingen 1, W. Germany.
The study of traditional grammar, especially English grammar, in their historical context. The study of the use of linguistic argument in deciding and establishing the forms and usage of English, and the parallels in earlier or other grammatical traditions.

Dr Jane Roberts,
Department of English, King's College, Strand, London WC2R 2LS.
The history of the English language. Historical semantics.

*Professor Robert H. Robins,
Department of Phonetics and Linguistics, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London WC1E 7HP.
April 1984

*Professor Paul A. Salmon,
5 Rotha Field Road, Oxford OX2 8JJ. (Professor Emeritus, University of Edinburgh.)
Medieval theories of diction. Eighteenth-century German philosophy of language.

*Mrs Vivian G. Salmon,
5 Rotha Field Road, Oxford OX2 8JJ. (Hon. Fellow, Faculty of Arts, University of Edinburgh.)

*Dr Leslie Selfert,
Hertford College, Oxford OX1 3BW.
The thought of Wilhelm von Humboldt, its influence and its reception. The influence of linguistics on the history of languages, and vice versa. Orthographical reform in Germany.

*Dr Erica Sheen,
Wolfson College, Oxford.
Renaissance rhetorical and critical theory. The language of Shakespearean drama.

Dr. Michael W. Stubbs,
Department of Linguistics, University of Nottingham, Nottingham NG7 2RD.
Writing systems and literacy. Basic vocabulary. Speech act theory.

Dr Magdalena Sumera,
P.C.K. 23, 33-110 Tarnów, Poland. (Pedagogical Institute, Tarnów)
Prosody, rhetoric, writing systems; the regulation of timing in speech. Historical phonology.

Dr Talbot J. Taylor,
College of William & Mary, Department of English, Williamsburg, Virginia, USA. (until 30/6/84: Department of French, University of Southampton.)
The history of stylistic theory. Seventeenth- and eighteenth-century linguistic thought in England and France.

*Ms Katie Wales,
Royal Holloway College, Department of English, University of London, Egham, Surrey TW20 0EX.
Anglo-Saxon and mediaeval rhetoric. Renaissance views on the English language, and on the origin of language. The development of lexicography. Dr Samuel Johnson's use of synonymy in his definitions and prose style, and his debt to John Locke. The work of Mikhail Bakhtin.

*Mr Alan Ward,
Wadham College, Oxford.
Orthography, pronunciation/phonetics and morphology. (More precisely: the study of phonetics in general; the history of English orthography and pronunciation from c. 700 to the present day.)
*Mr Christopher J. Wells,
St Edmund Hall, Oxford OX1 4NA.

Professor R.W. Wisbey,
Department of German, King's College, Strand, London WC2R 2LS.

Ms Mary M. Wood,
Department of Philosophy, University of Warwick, Coventry CV4 7AL.
The early Sanskrit grammarians, and especially their accounts of compositionality, collocation and idiom.

*Dr Dominik Wujastyk,
Wellcome Institute of the History of Medicine, 183 Euston Rd., London NW1.
Sanskrit grammar.

PUBLICATIONS BY MEMBERS

The following list has been compiled from replies to the questionnaire circulated. Most members made very full responses, though it should be noted that not all were able to make a return by the closing date.

All items submitted have been kept on record as a future reference resource. For reasons of space, however, the bibliography below has had to be restricted to items of a broadly historiographical content. This will inevitably have resulted in some erroneous editorial decisions, for which apologies are hereby tendered. Additions and corrections are requested so that an updated version can be made available for consultation at the September colloquium.

It is provisionally proposed that the annual bibliography in future years should focus on current and forthcoming publications, with as broad coverage as possible of work in progress (and indeed of work in conception and gestation). Comments and suggestions, both as to scope and format, would be welcome.

David Cram

AHLQUIST, A.
(1980) "The three parts of speech of Bardic grammar", Studia Celtica, 14/15, 12-17.

DUTZ, K.D.

FRANK, T.
(1979) Segno e Significato: John Wilkins e la Linguistica Filosofica, Napoli: Guida Editori. (Esperienze, 59)

FREEMAN, D.

HAMANS, C.
(1974/75) "De gehele aarde was één van taal en één van spraak (Gen. 11:1)", Spectator, 4, 321-340.
(1983) "De avonturen van een bot. Nederlandse ideén o.b.v. de evolutie in de 18e en het begin van de 19e eeuw", in Absperel & Van Eyck, Kongresbandel Filosofiedag Groningen, 78-87.

(1983) "500 years of English language teaching", ELTJ, 37, 262-265.
(In preparation) Readings in the Recent History of Language Teaching (working title), C.U.P.

(forthcoming) "Old Yiddish lexicography", Yidishe Shprakh, 38.
(in progress) "Christian studies in Yiddish, 1514-1863".

KELLY, J. (in press) "Boudouin de Courtenay's studies of pathological speech".

(1979) Intorno a Saussure, Torino: Stampatori.
(forthcoming) "Linguistics", in Barański, Z.G. & Shortt, J.R. (eds.) Developing Contemporary Marxism.
(in preparation) A collective, large volume of Storia della Linguistica, for il Mulino, Bologna.

(to appear) "James Murray and the phonetic notation in the New English Dictionary".
HSS NEWSLETTER 16 April 1984

(in progress) Computer-assisted study of Thomas Hallam’s unpublished phonetic transcriptions of educated English speech, 1850-1895.

MICHAEL, I.

(in preparation) A Historical Survey of the Teaching of English to 1870 (exact title to be decided; to be published by C.U.P.)

O’MAHONY, S.F.

Osselton, N.E.

(forthcoming) “Spelling book rules and the capitalization of nouns in the 17th and 18th century.”

PADLEY, C.A.

POSNER, R.

PRESS, I.

REIBEL, D.A.

(in progress) An edition of Lindley Murray’s Grammar (1795), and of documents relating to his life, and work.
ROBIN S, R.H.
(1973) Ideen- und Problemgeschichte der Sprachwissenschaft, Frankfurt a/M: Athenaeum.

SALMON, P.B.
(1968) "Herder's essay on the origin of language, and the place of man in the animal kingdom", German Life and Letters, 22, 59-70.
(forthcoming) Herder's Writings on Language (working title for a volume of translations, including the Abhandlung Über den Ursprung der Sprache and excerpts from other works, with a historical introduction.)

SALMON, V.G.

SEIFFERT, L.

STURMS, N.W.
(1978) "Some uses and misuses of scansion", Work in Progress, Edinburgh University Linguistics Department, 11, 134-139.
(1980) "The handling of three-syllable feet by Dr William Thomson", Work in Progress, Edinburgh University Linguistics Department, 13, 29-49.

(forthcoming) "Spencer's neologisms", in the projected Spencer Encyclopaedia, due to be published in Canada in 1985 or 1986.

WELLIS, C.J. (in press) German: A Linguistics History to 1945, O.U.P.